This ALT modifier stands for alternative. This will display if someone has their browser photos turned off or if a visually impaired person is having the page read to them. It tell the reader what the photo is about. Keep this label to one or two words - it's just a simple description.

This is the width you want the photo to display on the home page. It is always kept at 160 so all the photos are sized the same width. The height is not given, so the page displays the size correctly proportioned to the 160 width. There is no need to resize photos in the media library - just tell Wordpress to display them at 160 here.
